WELCOME TO DVCON EUROPE 2020!

IMPORTANT NOTE: DVCon Europe is closely monitoring the COVID-19 situation and how it may affect our event. However, we are still planning to hold a conference either in person, or virtually. We encourage submitting a paper even if you are unsure of travel restrictions or guidelines that may remain in October.

Certainty in Uncertain Times

Joachim Geishauser – General Chair

The DVCon Europe Steering Committee is working full steam on the preparation of the 7th Conference and Exhibition. The coronavirus situation does not make this an easy task, however, the team sees that it can also be an opportunity. The Steering Committee is working on different scenarios to run the Conference virtually. Certain is that we will run the conference, uncertain is the way we will run the conference. So the good news is: DVCon Europe will happen, in person or online! We will keep you informed about what is going on, as information is important in uncertain times.

DVCon Europe will be again a conference made by users for users. The submission lines are open to submit your paper, tutorial or panel ideas today. The submission deadline has been extended to the 11th of May, to adapt to the special situation we are in.

The DVCon Europe steering committee is looking forward to receiving your paper. We count on your support in these uncertain times, and you can be certain that we will bring a strong conference you can attend in person or online.

SYSTEMC EVOLUTION DAY 2020

Call for Contributions now open!

The 5th SystemC Evolution Day is a full-day technical workshop on the evolution of SystemC, with the goal of advancing and enriching the SystemC language, extensions and eco-system. This co-located event the day after DVCon Europe brings together experts from the SystemC user community, industry, and the Accellera Working Groups to discuss improvements and developments to SystemC and its further standardization.

The Call for Contributions is now open! You can contribute by sharing insights from your own projects and studies, as well as with follow-up topics from previous SystemC Evolution Days. Topics related to specific application domains, such as automotive, communications, and Internet-of-Things, are also welcome. A contribution can be in the form of findings, results or proposals, but also problems experienced that you feel need attention and discussion in an Accellera and SystemC user-community context. For more information on the SystemC Evolution Day and the Call for Contributions, visit this page.
